The INTERPOL Global Learning Centre (IGLC) is a web-based learning portal giving authorized users access to a comprehensive range of training services, including an E-Learning management system called I-Learn.

The goal of the IGLC is threefold:
1. To encourage the interactive sharing of knowledge and best practices between INTERPOL member countries.
2. To increase awareness of INTERPOL’s services and databases within the law enforcement community.
3. To provide the international law enforcement community with a secure platform to share their expertise.

Who can access IGLC and how?
Members of the public can access the research section of IGLC and the e-learning catalogue. However, they have no access to the e-learning contents, which are exclusively reserved to the members of the law enforcement community.

All law enforcement officers have the right to have access to IGLC’s e-learning modules, provided that INTERPOL National Central Bureau (NCB) of their country validates and accepts their request. Therefore, any law enforcement officer interested in taking an e-learning module should approach the INTERPOL National Central Bureau of their country to request access.

1. Officers of the INTERPOL National Central Bureau (NCB): Access IGLC via the I-24/7 network through their INSYST accounts. The IGLC portal is available through the NCB dashboard.
2. Law enforcement officers not working at the INTERPOL National Central Bureau (NCB): Access IGLC via the INTERPOL restricted (https) website. The request for access must be sent through the INTERPOL National Central Bureau (NCB).
