

THE ROLE OF THE REQUESTS CHAMBER

In practice, the Commission handles two categories of individual requests through its Request Chamber:

- Requests from individuals or entities seeking information on the possible processing of data concerning them in INTERPOL's Information System, also called requests for access;
- Requests from individuals or entities seeking to correct and or delete data recorded in INTERPOL's files concerning them, also called complaints.

To obtain more information about how to submit an individual request, see "Your Rights".

This role is described in Article 28 of the Statute of the Commission for the Control of INTERPOL's Files.
